We'd like to eliminate the mayor

What Carmel needs most at the present moment is to be known—far and wide if must be, but especially at home—as the Town That Doesn't Have a Mayor.

With election coming up in April, good citizens, who might otherwise be prevailed upon to run for city council, quail and shudder at the possibility that the voters might not stop at just electing them, but might come through with a landslide, casting The Greatest Number of Votes for them, which is Carmel's way of putting the finger on a man and saying, "You're Mayor."

Not that any normal human being balks at the honor and glory of being mayor. It's the complaints that one has to listen to, the questions one has to answer, and the wear and tear on one's personal popularity, and the sacrifice of one's time—

"I had to give up a third of each working day to the job," One Time Mayor Bert Heron told us yesterday. "With the increase in size of the town, I suppose there is even more call on the mayor's time now."

And the job doesn't pay anything.

Under such circumstances, there are a lot of fine people who couldn't afford to be mayor, even if they were willing to undertake it.

Therefore—

What Carmel needs is a Clerk to the Council who is paid a salary to answer questions, and handle complaints—the items that put the greatest strain on the Mayor's time and disposition.

No, we didn't say City Manager. Nothing could be more foreign to Carmel. The person we have in mind would be little more than a glorified errand runner, a pleasant voice over the phone, a whipping boy, a crying pillow, a typical Carmel creation developed out of Carmel's own peculiar need.

It would work this way.

Mrs. Jasper Howler calls up the Clerk to the Council. There has been plenty of advance information in the Pine Cone and she knows she can get sympathy, understanding and quick results by telling her troubles first to the Clerk to the Council. (Not to be confused with the City Clerk, who already has a full time job).

Mrs. Howler is mad. She wants to know what sort of town is this, anyway, and what sort of a city government is it whose idea of sanitation is to allow her garbage to putrify in the can until her neighbors have stopped passing the time of day over the back fence and Tommy Howler is being looked at askance by his class mates in the third grade. In Tulleville, where she comes from, garbage is collected once a week, and if this is the kind of place Carmel is, she's sorry she ever left Tulleville.

This is the mayor's cue to tell her to go on back to Tulleville, but not the Clerk to the Council, who is paid to keep his temper. After all, Mrs. Howler, though sometimes uninhibited in speech, has

Harry Downie Shudders To Recall "Gold Rush" At Mission San Carlos

BY PARKER KIMBALL

The excavation work, preliminary to the restoration of the aged Mission San Carlos, was proceeding tranquilly. Then began spreading a rumor of the discovery, in the Mission's quadrangle, of the entrance to a secret tunnel leading to a nearby set of abandoned mine shafts. Forthwith, Harry Downie, museum curator doing the excavating, found himself the precipitator of a minor gold rush.

BACK FORTY YEARS WITH THE PLAYHOUSE

As a special pleader, Edward Kuster makes a very entertaining historian. His petition to have the Playhouse rezoned so that he can make necessary repairs on the theatre comes up for public hearing before the city council next Wednesday night. People have asked him why his property, a business enterprise in a residential zone, should receive special consideration. His answer is that the Playhouse was there for twenty years before the area was zoned for residential use and that the manner in which the Playhouse has served the community makes it an asset to the town. However, when he began to plead his case in a letter to the Pine Cone, what was intended to be Kuster's Case Before the Council, turned out the History of the Playhouse with comment on the Arts and Crafts of hallowed memory and the Abalone League, and why it died.

The History of the Playhouse proves to be tied up with so much of Carmel's lively past that Betty Haskell has moved out of her Days Before Yesterday Column on the Feature Page to make room for it.

The explanation was simple. When in his digging, Mr. Downie uncovered an old brick-baking kiln, someone had seen it, jumped to the conclusion that it was the long-hidden entrance to the legendary mine of the Mission Padres. Word had made the rounds as at Sutter's Mill. The lost Mine found at last?

Since earliest Mission days the rumor had persisted of such a lost mine located somewhere in the vicinity. Many of the first Indian converts purportedly had been seen going into the mountains to return with handfuls of gold dust which they gave to the Padres. Some versions placed it in the Sierras behind the Mission—"eight hours distance from the last point in the Ventanas (part of the Santa Lucia range) where one can look back and see the Mission spires." Another version described a treasure hoard as lying in a cave at the mouth of the Rio Carmelo.

As nebulous as any "lost mine," only two living persons claimed knowledge of it. One was a forest-fire fighter who professed to have stumbled across it while fleeing for his life. The flames, eating up the brush, exposed a ledge rich in gold dust. But, breaking a leg in his flight, this man was unable to return to seek it until once more the brush had veiled it from rediscovery.

The other person, the only one (Continued on page 14)

Council Meeting On Next Wednesday To Open Garbage Bids

At the adjourned regular meeting of the Carmel City Council on Wednesday night, February 20, 8:45 o'clock bids will be opened for the garbage franchise. The council is not required to grant the franchise at that time, nor at any time for a year's period, but may enter into a temporary agreement, if no bids are offered, or if the bids are not satisfactory. At the same meeting there will be a public hearing on the petition of Edward Kuster for a rezoning of his Playhouse property.

St. Board Calls Off Protest Hearing On Liquor License

The Salinas office of the Board of Equalization notified Peter Mawdsley, Carmel city clerk, Thursday morning, that in view of the Carmel Council's action Wednesday in withdrawing its protest, the public hearing set for Thursday afternoon on the transfer of an off-sale beer and wine license from L. L. Clift to Edwin M. Tomasini had been cancelled.

A letter of protest from the Carmel USO will be dealt with separately, the Salinas board representative said.

Phil Nesbitt Doing Ogden Murals; Show At Gump's Popular

Phil Nesbitt is currently engaged in painting a tropical mural panel on one of the walls of Murl Ogden's new studio of photography in the old Tillie Polak studio. The subject is a vista of an essentially torrid nature, showing ocean, palm trees, tropical birds of plumage and great curving plants. The colors are rust, blue and green. Native canoes are seen in the foreground. This panel is somewhat nostalgic in its effect upon the Murl Ogden family, for they were long time residents of tropical Hawaii, where Murl was a portrait photographer in the romantic Royal Hawaiian hotel for several years of successful work.

Mr. Nesbitt's one man show, which opened at Gump's in San Francisco last week, is exciting favorable comment and attracting the attention of San Francisco art enthusiasts who have an appreciation for the fresh, original humorous and sardonic in painting. Love at Pebble Beach, which was highly popular when Mr. Nesbitt exhibited it several months ago at the Carmel gallery, is among the favorites. Daughters of the Revolution and Isn't Art Wonderful are gleaming their share of pleased chuckles. There are also a great number of new watercolors that have not been shown in Carmel, so that it would repay the Carmelites who might be in San Francisco during the month, to visit the Nesbitt show.

Dr. Finley Is Air Port Candidate

Dr. James B. Finley, for three years a Carmel resident, who has maintained dental offices in Monterey since 1925, announced his candidacy for election to the Monterey Air Port District Board yesterday.

He is at present a member of the board to which he was appointed two years ago at the death of Gen. D. W. Hand, whose term would have expired this month.

Charles Frost, Monterey business man, the other board member whose term expires this month, was confined to his home with the influenza yesterday and could not be reached. Until that time he had not announced whether or not he would run for re-election. Hold-over members are: Fred Godwin, Carmel; Charles Olmsted, Pacific Grove and Dr. Harry L. Brownell, Monterey, who have two more years to serve.

Dr. Finley, in his many years residence on the Peninsula, has taken an active part in civic affairs, serving as Chairman of the Monterey City Planning Commission, Chairman of the Gasoline Panel for the Rationing Board, Examining Dentist for Selective Service Board, Director of the Monterey Foundation, an organization for the preservation of historic buildings. Among his club affiliations are the American Legion—he is past commander of the Monterey Post—and the Elks, of which he is past exalted ruler.

He was born in Arizona and came to California in his boyhood, graduated from Los Angeles High School, entered Stanford in 1914, completed his professional training at the University of Southern California Dental School in 1920. After practicing in Los Angeles and Fresno, he came to Monterey in 1925 to make his home and open his dental office. Three years ago, he brought his family to Carmel to make their home. His daughter, Patricia, is nine years old and attends Sunset School.

Carmel citizens will vote for air port members at the city election April 9, when they will also elect three members to the city council.

"Motion To Strike" Will Be Heard In Pon's Case Today

Today Judge Ray Baugh will hear a "motion to strike", in which Charles McHarry, representing Alf Nilssen, moves that all of the cross complaint and part of the answer filed by John Catlin in behalf of Pon Chung in the Who Owns Pon's House Case be stricken as improper matter for such documents. Date has not been set for hearing of the case in which Nilssen will try to dispossess Pon from the house Nilssen claims he bought along with the property on Seventh and San Carlos, and Pon maintains was given to him by the original owners.

Carmel, California
Route 1, Box 91,

Editor of The Pine Cone:

The fears expressed by one of your good readers in last week's Pine Cone issue calls for an explanation.

The red coloring growing on dead limbs and twigs in a certain area within the Cypress Grove at Point Lobos is a perfectly harmless "algae" which has learned to live in the trees, so says Dr. E. P. Meinecke, Bureau of Plant Pathology, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Meinecke was called upon by the Point Lobos Advisory Committee to make a study of the protection of Point Lobos. This Green Algae (Living Algae) is of the genus Chroolepus. It grows on dead twigs, branches, and even on rocks in shaded areas where there is a flow of moisture laden air passing through the trees. It will not stand any great amount of direct sunshine.

Many have likened it to fire-light glow, and when viewed from this standpoint, it takes on an added beauty. This plush like growth fades to almost white when dead, and during a dry spell, fades out considerably. However, during our winter and wet periods, it takes on a very rich coloring.

We hope our visitors will look upon this very interesting plant from an entirely different point of view when next they visit Point Lobos.

Very truly yours,

R. A. Wilson,
Chief Park Ranger

February 14, 1946

Editor of the Pine Cone:

The announcement by the California Water and Telephone Company of intended improvement upon their system will be appreciated by all interested water consumers, but it would be more welcomed if it also had carried with it a promise to reduce its high water rates to the small water consumers.

Years ago, when the plant was owned yet by the Monterey County Water Works, a reduction of rates was announced, but, when they were through, the reduction was all to the benefit of the large consumers.

If a person now wants to enjoy having a garden on an ordinary lot in the Carmel Woods, it will cost him for eight months in the year from four to five dollars a month, and at that he cannot give his plants all the water they need but just enough to keep them from drying up.

In Visalia, where I have lived many years, we had a flat rate of $1.50 per month. The city has a pumping plant in the city, and management made it known through the local papers that the citizens were welcome to use all the water needed for their gardens, but they should keep it from running in the street gutters and into gopher holes.

I did not even consider this charge to be a low one, as prior to 1906 I had lived over twenty years in Milwaukee, Wis., where I could not use for house and garden more than forty to fifty cents worth of water, at the water rate, for three months.

This city pumped her water by two big plants from Lake Michigan and turned a big stream of water into the Milwaukee River before this enters the city for better navigation and for sanitary reasons. Besides this, Milwaukee maintained two free natatoriums with hot showers and heat-tempered water in the swimming pools all through the year for six days every week (two each for men, women and children) where people could enjoy a free swim even in below-zero temperature outside.

The city had a surplus from the water works which she turned over to other departments, but to which the public openly complained and insisted that the water-rates should be reduced.

My conclusion: Milwaukee, at any time, had a good government; Visalia gave us a fair deal in her water supply; but Carmel is what she claims to be—different.

Gala Week End At First Theatre; New Melodrama Opening

"Under the Gaslight" opened last night at the First Theatre, Monterey, to an enthusiastic and packed house. The famous melodrama, which had its first New York production in 1867, and which the First Theatre produced five years ago under the direction of Steve Cochran, and later under Ronald Telfer, plays tonight, Saturday and Sunday nights, and week-ends thereafter.

Directed by Wilma Bott, whose reputation as director and actress is established on the Peninsula, "Under the Gaslight" stars Louise Welty as Laura; George McMennamin opposite her, as Ray Trafford; Dan Welty as the conspiring villain; Bernice Blair as Pearl; Betty Anne Stanfield as Peachblossom; Ernestine Lenhart as Old Judas; Mary Greene as Mrs. Van Dam, with George McElroy, Wayne Edwards, Don Cornell, Sammy McGill, Lucille Deaton, Herbert Varney, Charles Myers, Peter Tweedt and Jimmie Vincent in supporting roles.

Costumes by Rhoda Johnson, settings by Richard Johnson and John Stanley, lighting by Kay Knudsen and piano by Edward Hopkins contribute their excellence to the high standard of the production.

George McMennamin is M.C. of the olio. A full review of "Under the Gaslight" will appear in the Pine Cone next week.

C.M.C. Presents Harpsichordist, Violinist Feb. 23

The Carmel Music Society presents Alexander Schneider, violin, and Ralph Kirkpatrick, harpsichord, for their next attraction at Sunset School Auditorium, Saturday evening at 8:15, February 23. The fifth and last concert will be Andres Segovia, appearing the following Friday, March 1.

Schneider and Kirkpatrick have long been noted for their performances of Chamber Music. Alexander Schneider was, until recently, a member of the Budapest Quartet, and Ralph Kirkpatrick, both in solo recital and ensemble programs, is recognized as America's most eminent harpsichordist.

The collaboration of these two celebrated artists has made it possible, almost for the first time, to hear some of the finest eighteenth century music in the peculiarly sensitive and lively colors in which it was conceived. This has never been adequately set forth by the modern piano. The exceptionally happy combination of harpsichord and violin, in performances of Bach, Mozart, Handel, Tartini and others, has proved a surprising revelation to many listeners.

Under the auspices of the Coolidge Foundation of the Library of Congress, Schneider and Kirkpatrick made their first transcontinental tour in the summer of 1944. The success of these recitals brought about a second tour across the country in the spring of 1945. The Carmel Music Society feel they are fortunate in being able to present this talented duo, to their discriminating audience, on their third tour.

The press of Boston makes this comment, "This was a concert to remember. Every thing about it—which includes the program, the instruments, the performers and the integration of all these factors into a musical reality of unimpeachable artistic quality—was memorable."

The Carmel Music Society Box Office will open Monday, February 18, located with the Carmel Land Company on Ocean Avenue across from the Carmel Library. There are only a few available seats, as this season's subscribers number 544. Tickets may be had for both Schneider and Kirkpatrick and for the last concert featuring Andres Segovia, Guitarist.

with your own interests will be welcomed. All lectures will be supplemented with first motion pictures available, many in natural color. The cost of admission to these lectures is your attendance, registered with your signature as you enter. The lecturers are offering their talent primarily as a public service with the purpose of bringing to the public interesting and sometimes little-known facts in their respective fields."

Hefling Over The Top: F. D. Record For 1945 Praiseworthy

Right on the nose, at the end of the time limit set for himself, Fire Commissioner Frank Hefling reached his goal with fifty cents over, Tuesday afternoon, one month after he announced his drive to raise $500.00 to buy a radio-phonograph and records for the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department club room.

Asked what the department would do with the extra fifty cents, Commissioner Hefling said by golly they wouldn't throw it away. How he happened to have that fifty cents in the first place is that somebody donated $2.50 to the cause instead of $2.00 or $3.00. Every other contribution was in round numbers, from $1.00 up.

The radio-phonograph won't be available for some time but when it is, the firemen have three Carmel business houses to choose from where they can get the instrument at cost. A committee of five will be selected to make the purchase.

Meanwhile, if there is anybody who doesn't think that the Volunteer Fire Department deserves a radio-phonograph plus a pat on the back, here is the department's report for the year of 1945, as submitted to the city council.

"The department was called on twenty-five sounded alarms, five still alarms, nineteen service calls and 194 ambulance calls. Total of 243 calls for the year.

"The department held twenty-five drills, burnt grass and rubbish on twenty-two vacant lots and grass on city streets, laid 12,550 feet of hose at fires and drills, raised 1,480 feet of ladder at fires and drills.

"Fire loss for the year was $3,930.00, while property involved was $80,750.00."

A study of the records shows that $1,500 of the loss was a cottage fire in which the alarm was not turned in until the place was completely enveloped in flames, and $1,300.00 loss when a fifty gallon drum of gas became ignited from careless smoking. In three cases, where there was $12,000.00; $7,500.00 and $20,000.00 worth of property involved, there was no loss whatever, owing to the prompt response of the department. In other cases, loss amounted to sums of ten to fifty dollars, such as when clothes, drying over a gas heater, became ignited. The garments were destroyed, but the $4,500.00 worth of property involved was saved.

the makings of a fine citizen. He says, yes, isn't it a shame, and has she got in touch with John?

Whereupon he learns that, yes, she left a note in the box on the post in front of Joe's Taxi for John, asking him to come get the garbage three weeks ago, and she'd inclosed money in the envelope, too. Certainly, she'd written down where she lives, on Torres, the house with the big pine tree in the yard.

It's just a step from here on for "that nice young man who is Clerk to the Council" to elicit from Mrs. Howler which house on Torres with the pine tree in the yard, and relay the information to John.

But according to the new ordinance, the garbage collector will have to maintain an office in Carmel. Then people can deliver their complaints directly and we won't need a Clerk to the Council to take complaints; besides, John may be superseded by some marvel of efficiency with an ex-ray mind like Super-Brain, who can guess which house on Torres with the pine tree in the yard.

All right, even if the millennium arrived and there were no complaints at all about the garbage, what about the people who want to know why there is a chuck hole in the street in front of their house so that the cars banging in and out of it keep them awake all night? What of the citizens who want to point out that the rain water is running into their front door instead of down the storm drain, the people who want to register their kicks about the police department?

A Clerk to the Council could not remedy nor solve many of the above complaints, but he could refer them to the proper councilmen, garbage complaints to the Commissioner of Health and Safety; police department kicks to Commissioner of Police Allen Knight, street department matters to the Commissioner of Streets, etc. Why the Mayor, who is finance commissioner, should handle garbage complaints, that logically come under the aegis of the Commissioner of Health and Safety, and police department complaints, and street department complaints, we have never yet been able to determine. We suppose that as long as there is a mayor, the other members of the council will make him pay through the nose for the honor and glory by shoving off onto him as much work as possible, and then in a fit of remorse, back him up at council meetings on whatever he wants to do, no matter how pig-headed, unreasonable or obviously unpolitic it may be.

The happiest solution would be to abolish the office of mayor and have just five councilmen, who choose at the end of each meeting who will preside at the next. Unfortunately, we can't do that. State laws regulating cities of the sixth class require a mayor. So we have to have one, but he could be a mayor in name only. Other members of the council could assume their fair share of the burden and do the work of their own departments, and we could hire a Clerk of the Council to answer questions, to explain, to soothe, to sympathize and to run errands.

—Wilma Cook.

P. S. Police Commissioner Allen Knight wants to have somebody just to answer the police telephone in the day time. The police department is already costing considerably more than its performance justifies. Why not hire a Clerk to the Council, charge his salary up to the finance department, and let him keep his office hours in the police office and answer their phone on the side?

League Wires Truman To Hold Price Ceilings

Protest against raising price ceilings and thereby loosing a disastrous inflation upon the American consumer was voiced by the California League of Women Voters in a telegram to President Truman last week, following discussion at the conference at Palo Alto of the problem that hits every family and every individual in the country. This action supported a similar protest by letter to the President by Miss Anna Lord Strauss, president of the National League of Women Voters, sent a few days earlier.

"Special interest groups can shout louder than the unorganized consumer," said the California League telegram, "but the voice of the majority of the American people is rising against any further increase in the cost of living."

"We recognize, of course," wrote Miss Strauss, "that increased production is essential to the solution of the threatened inflation. However, we cannot agree with recent statements by individuals inside and outside the Administration, that relaxation or removal of price controls will have a healthy effect on our economy. . . . The National League of Women Voters calls upon you to withstand the pressure of those who threaten us with less production — and of those who reportedly are withholding production — in an effort to force a price increase. We are confident that increases which are warranted in order to permit business at a reasonable profit will be granted by the Office of Price Administration. . . . Prompt renewal of the Price Control Act for one year and without crippling amendments will serve to discourage the present scramble for increases and the withholding of needed goods from the market in the hope of higher prices."

Art Hull Back, "Sunset Was In Capable Hands"

Sunset School has welcomed back its pre-war principal, Arthur C. Hull, just returned to his duties following his separation from the army in December after nearly four years' service as an Anti-Aircraft officer.

Simultaneously, the school lost Miss Bernice Riley, elementary grade teacher, when she and Mr. Hull were married in Oakland shortly after his return about a month ago. It was the culmination of marriage plans interrupted when the latter was summoned to Officer's Candidate School and then sent to a year's duty establishing Anti-Aircraft defenses on the East Coast around Norfolk, Va.

In April, 1943, Lt. Hull was sent overseas with the 74th CA (AA) Regiment, landing near Oran, then proceeding to Algiers where he and his unit set up the city's harbor defenses and provided anti-aircraft protection for General Eisenhower's Allied Headquarters. Several months later he was sent to Sardinia, remaining there a year defending airfields on the Southern part of the island. While there he was able to travel through Italy, visiting both Rome and Pompeii.

Shortly before VE day his organization was deactivated and he was assigned to a Quartermaster unit engaged in trucking ammunition, gas, and rations to the Seventh Army in its operations. For his accomplishments during this period as S-3 of the Second Quartermaster Group, Mr. Hull, now Captain, earned the Bronze Star Medal.

Located in Germany after V-E day, Captain Hull visited the Brenner Pass, Berchtesgaden, and with a fellow officer, commandeered a jeep which they took to the Riviera. While in Monaco on the Riviera, they decided to have a look at the Casino of Monte Carlo, then off-limits to military personnel. Their sightseeing was cut short by the arrival of Military Police who took them into custody and notified their commanding officer. Fortunately, according to Mr. Hull, the Colonel was a good guy and wrote off their transgressions.

Mr. Hull also managed to visit London, Paris, and Scotland. While in Scotland he visited an aunt and uncle, and later stayed with another aunt and uncle living just

Atom Bomb Subject Of Forum Lecture Wednesday Evening

On Wednesday evening, February 20, at 8 o'clock, Dr. Philip W. Buck, of the department of Political Science of Stanford University, will appear as the forum speaker. His topic will be Living with the Atomic Bomb. Dr. Buck is a very able lecturer in the field of international politics and builds his lecture around a broad study of the United Nations Organization and its problem of building an organization for the establishment of world peace.

"It was my privilege to hear Dr. Buck give a forum lecture on this subject in San Jose last fall," John Westover, Ault School Principal, said, "and he was, without a doubt, one of the finest forum lecturers that it has been my pleasure to hear. Dr. Buck was a Rhodes Scholar from the University of Idaho. This forum, also, will be held at Sunset Auditorium."

Improved Health Program At H. S.; Nickel Up In Lunch, Maybe; Board Takes Stand On Summer School

First steps toward achieving a more extensive health program for Carmel's public schools as recommended by Dr. L. A. Williams at last month's school board meeting, have been taken, Superintendent Leo Harris announced to the board members at their meeting Tuesday night.

Since the high school classes assemble earlier than Sunset's arrangements have been made so that the school nurse, Florence Morrow, visits the high school first in the morning, arriving at 8:30. All students who have been absent because of illness are required to receive clearance from her before they may resume classes. Also, first period teachers are to check their students between 8:45 and 9:00 o'clock so that any student appearing to be in the early stages of a communicable disease can be sent to the nurse before she leaves for Sunset at 9:00 o'clock.

Miss Ruth Herzog, high school home economics teacher, is to head a faculty committee which will work out a program of health and hygiene instruction for the students, Mr. Harris said.

The board voted to raise the price of the plate lunch served in the high school cafeteria from twenty to twenty-five cents if the application for an increase in federal apportionment from six cents per student lunch to nine cents is denied. This action will be necessary, it was explained, because of increased cost of food, and because the cafeteria help has received a raise from seventy-five cents an hour to a dollar an hour. Sunset cafeteria has refused federal apportionment in order to avoid making a profit on its cafeteria and to prevent a further increase in its $900.00 surplus. Sunset's and the high school's plate lunch are the same: a hot dish, a vegetable, roll and glass of milk, but the latter comprises larger servings. Soup and salad at the high school cafeteria cost five cents each, dessert, ten cents. From eight to one hundred students take the plate lunch, and a total of from 135 to 140, or fifty percent of the 340 enrollment, use the cafeteria, some taking the salad, soup or dessert to supplement lunches brought from home.

The following recommendation of the faculty on policy of the Carmel Unified School District regarding attendance at the high school and credit for courses taken in summer schools was read by Superintendent Harris and accepted by the board:

"Feeling that the modern high school has a broad cultural and vocational program as well as complete academic offerings and that maturity is one of the essentials of successful accomplishment in college and vocational endeavors, the trustees of the Carmel Unified School District have made it a policy to require four full years of high school attendance as one of the basic requirements for graduation.

"In order to give proper guidance to students, we also feel that all work taken at the high school level should be approved by the faculty counselors and fit into the over-all long range educational plans of the student. With these objectives in mind, the following policy has been adopted regarding summer school attendance by students of the Carmel High School. These regulations are not for the purpose of discouraging summer school attendance but rather to encourage students to take in summer school those subjects which will bring about a satisfactory total development of the whole student.

"Students proposing to take work in summer school which will count

Board Members Make Statement On School Survey

In voting to engage Kump Company to make a survey of the future needs of the Carmel school system, the members of the board of trustees made the following statement at their meeting Tuesday night, with the request that it be made public:

"To assure parents and taxpayers of the district that their interests are being safeguarded through wisely considered, long term educational investments, the Carmel Unified School District has negotiated with the Ernest J. Kump Company, San Francisco, architects and school planning consultants, for the preparation and completion of a planning survey. This planning survey will consist of an analysis of the school district and its educational plants to provide a long term plan to guide the future growth and development of these educational plants in order that they may render a maximum of efficient service to the district and to tomorrow's citizens who are in today's schools.

"The advantages of such a survey will be felt over a long period of time. In order to avoid the all too frequent mistakes and difficulties arising out of haphazard school plant developments that have been formulated with only immediate needs in mind, the planning survey will serve as a guide to present and future school boards in the planning and location of buildings and development of school sites. It will be a long range, well thought out, official statement of policy, based on factual data and suffitoward graduation must present a written request signed by their parents before the end of the school term. This request must be approved by the superintendent before credit will be allowed.

"Upon petition to the superintendent and with his approval, failures made in subjects during the regular school term may be made up in summer school.

"Only in exceptional cases, and upon petition, will credit in any college preparatory subject be given when that subject has been taken in summer school.

"Knowing that our high school is rated by institutions of higher learning on the basis of grades made at the college level by our graduates, it is only logical and fair that we approve all college preparatory courses taken by students receiving our diploma."

A burglary in the high school shop was reported and the board voted to replace the $69.00 worth of tools stolen, instructing Peter Mawdsley, budget controller, to inquire into possibilities of taking out burglary insurance. Contracts to Arthur Hull, George Mosolf, Donald Craig and John A. White, Sunset principal and high school

ently flexible to make it adaptable to the ever present changing needs in educational requirements and school housing facilities.

"Factual data for the survey will be acquired through the study of the general composition of the school district with reference to industries, occupations, population trends, school enrollment trends, and birth rates. An analysis will be made of the financial status of the district and methods of financing school plant improvements and expansion. Crystallization of the factual data obtained in this manner will provide a practical program for determining present and future building and site requirements for school and community use.

"Accompanying the written analysis of the school district will be a series of site utilization drawings showing existing facilities and proposed facilities. These drawings will be organized to indicate growth stages as required by the particular problem.

"The Ernest J. Kump Company specializes in school design and has received national recognition for its contributions to modern school planning, having an experience with over three hundred elementary and high schools throughout the state of California."

Serra School Notes ...

Our Visit to The Mission

On Wednesday Harry Downie took the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades through the museum. He explained about the founding and building of the Carmel Mission.

Then Mr. Downie showed us Father Serra's vestments, and the room where he died. After that he explained how the choir loft was built, and how the pictures were painted. We saw the font where 5,000 Indians were baptized.

Then he took us to the side chapel where the Indians were brought after they died. They were left there for two days, then wrapped up and buried in the cemetery.

Then he explained about the weapons used in Father Serra's time.

Last of all he showed us the kitchen where the meals were cooked.

We had a very nice afternoon. —Margaret Schmutz, 4th Grade.

We saw the books and vestments that Father Serra used at mass.

Father Serra slept on hard boards without a pad under him and just one blanket on top.

We saw the room that was the library but is now used to show things that the Indians used. There was a statue of Our Lady that has movable joints. There was another statue that the Indians carved.

It was very interesting. —Edith Rigdon, 4th Grade.

Misplacing School Books

One afternoon I went right straight home to do my homework. When I was finished I laid my books in the bottom drawer of the big desk in the front room.

Next morning I dressed, ate and started looking for my books. I looked and looked but could not remember where I had put them.

When I got to school the teacher asked me where my books were, so I told her I could not find them.

That night I looked again but still I couldn't find them. I finally had to pay for them.

One night I went to the bottom drawer for some paper. There were my books. I took them to school the next morning and got my money back.

—Lanny Doolittle, 6th Grade.

Mrs. Ada Black

Funeral services for Mrs. Ada Black, who died Sunday at Hollow Hills Farm in Carmel Valley, were conducted by the Rev. Wellington Smith, Wednesday afternoon, in the T. A. Dorney Chapel, Monterey.

Born in Alabama, she had lived in Oakland many years before going to live with her daughter, Mrs. Eufa Pharr, in the Valley last Christmas. Her health had been failing for the past month. Surviving are another daughter, Mrs. Juanita Williams, and a son, Freeman Black, both of Los Angeles; and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Mancy, San Francisco.

3 Top Speakers On Brotherhood Program Monday

Corporal Paul Eisler, known in the Army's psychological warfare branch as the Voice of General Eisenhower, will be the featured speaker Monday night at the public forum in Sunset School auditorium, inaugurating International Brotherhood Week. Beginning at 8 o'clock, the program will include talks by Lieut. Col. Wallace H. Moore and Jefferson Beaver, after which the trio will join in a round-table discussion of brotherhood.

Here in 1939 from Austria, Corporal Eisler entered the army in 1943 and played an important role in psychological warfare. He participated in five major European campaigns, landing in Normandy on D-Day. The loud speaker was his principal weapon, with which he sought to convince the Germans of the futility of their resistance. He became mayor of Idstein, when it fell in Allied hands. Finally Wounded by a sniper, he was flown back to the United States. The corporal has won the Purple Heart and Bronze Star medal. He has spoken widely on the advantages of being an American from the standpoint of what he saw in Germany, and he has stressed the need of world-wide unity, which will again be his theme Monday, Brotherhood—or Else?

Colonel Moore, formerly an economics professor at the University of California, has been active in preparing the West Coast for return of evacuated Japanese. He is on leave from General Eichelberger's public relations staff. Jefferson Beaver is a San Francisco real estate man, active in promotion of the welfare of the Negro. A University of California graduate, he formerly edited the San Francisco Reporter and was associated with the Harlem YMCA in New York.

Lions Club Have Gen. Joe Stilwell For Honor Guest

Gen. Joseph Stilwell, whose activities as a great warrior and leader of fighting men in the jungle of Burma, China and the Pacific Islands are now general knowledge, was the honor guest at the Carmel Lions Club dinner meeting at Whitney's Tuesday night. He gave a short talk on some of his experiences in World War II, and told of the team work of the fighting forces, which were made possible by the civilians at home. He is now stationed in the San Francisco area, and his family continue to make their home in Carmel.

Art Heller, recently discharged from the Army, entertained the club with some Irish songs and was accompanied by Lt. William Horowitz at the piano, who has a way of coaxing the ivories to turning out some wonderful music. He held the complete attention of the Lion members with his own variations on the popular boogie woogie.

Visiting Lions were Rus Zaches of Monterey and Dave Davison of Salinas. Wes Kergan, City Attorney for Monterey, who makes Carmel his home, was also a visitor.

Vice President Fred Goss, who was in the chair, in the absence of President Bob O'Brien, in San Francisco with his son, who is very ill, announced that Dr. Frank Thomas, president of the Fresno State College, would be the guest of the club next Tuesday, and following the dinner meeting, all the Lions will go to the high school to hear Dr. Thomas speak to the P.T.A. members, and parents of the children of Sunset and the high school.

Next Friday evening at 7:30, the Carmel Lions Bowling Team will take on the challenging Monterey Lions at the Monterey Bowl. Captain of the Carmel Lions Regulars, Sam Coleman, says, "With the average '200', my team figures to come out of the game with some pins to spare."

Reporting on the wind up of the clothes drive, sponsored by the club, Ernest Bixler asked for volunteers to show up at the store room and help him nail the lids onto the boxes Wednesday night.

It was also announced that the kids' party would be held at the Carmel Theatre at ten o'clock on Saturday morning and Lloyd Weer asked the Lion members to be there to help hand out the candy.

Improved Health Program At H. S.

teachers recently released from the armed forces, were approved. The resignation of Mrs. Elizabeth Corbett, commercial teacher at the high school, was announced. Ill health was given as the reason. Superintendent Harris said that her work would be taken over by other teachers, as the return of the service men makes the teaching staff ample this semester.

The petition of Alden Kelly, Daphne Lawrence, Patricia Ann Murtha, Lunda Jane Weinmann and John Kepplemen, children of newcomers to Carmel, to attend kindergarten was granted, as they have had pre-school experience.

A letter was read from Mrs. Elise DeCelles Beaton, sponsor for the Carmel High School Chapter of the California Scholarship Federation, requesting that the board provide the pins for the Seal Bearers, those who achieve top scholastic honors in the organization. The board voted to buy the pins, Superintendent Harris commenting, "Mrs. Beaton is doing a fine job of sponsoring the group."

Adult School Principal John Westover, reporting on his department, said that he anticipated that under the most pessimistic interpretation of new state legislation regarding adult school allocations, the Carmel Adult School will break even financially. Heretofore, the adult school has returned a profit to the school district, one year contributing as much as $4000 to the system.

Mr. Harris, reporting on the financial status of the Associated Students, said that gate receipts for the fall sports had been large enough to carry the less profitable spring sports. He announced, also, that fences were to be constructed on the ramps and walls at Sunset, and that a play field was to be surfaced in the spring.

Final approval of the administrative code was given and Mr. Harris and Dr. Williams delegated to attend to its being printed for distribution to the faculty.

CARMEL CLEANERS

Carmel-by-the-Sea, California

February 15, 1946

Dear Friends:

As you have probably read in other ads, I have sold the Carmel Cleaners to the firm of Nelson & Martin. I wish, at this time, to thank my friends and customers for their patience and understanding during the war years when lack of materials and experienced help made our job extremely difficult. But now conditions are changing and with a new and much younger manager, Bob Martin, I am sure you will find the Carmel Cleaners up to, if not better than of old. Bob is going to maintain the same staff so you won't have new employees working on your clothing.

You worked me to a frazzle and now I am going to take a rest and let an Ex-Service man take over.

Sincerely,

Ken Gould.

Baller Surmounts Handicap Of Poor Instrument In Beethoven Sonata

By SOPHIE HARPE

The Carmel Music Society's concert in Sunset Auditorium last Friday evening fell somewhat below the level usually expected of that organization. The piano was, unfortunately, nothing short of appalling and must have been a source of chagrin to the directors, who have for some time past been attempting to track down a suitable Steinway as a permanent aid to superior performances. Any sincere consideration of the playing of Adolph Baller must take the lack of a proper instrument, in some measure at least, as an alleviating factor.

The program, as planned, was a good one and well-balanced, with possibly the exception of Mr. Baller's own composition, Piano Suite of Three Pieces, which adequate and pleasing enough in itself was, to be sure, as effectual as a bit of thistledown in the company of such Titans as Brahms, Beethoven and Bach.

The first group, two Brahms Intermezzi and a Ballade, served simply as an "opener", but in the Beethoven E Flat Major Sonata deep feeling, keen appreciation of the musical structure, rich and varied dynamics, and a tonal quality almost besting the instrumental handicap, showed Mr. Baller's musicianship at its best, the highlight of the program. The Scherzo movement was particularly charming in its delicacy and perfect and unbroken musical line.

Moussorgsky's Pictures at an Exhibition, which closed the program is all too seldom included in the pianistic repertoire. This superb composition, an outstanding example of pure Baroque in music, requiring as it does a high degree of technical skill, rich interpretation and an impeccable musical taste, was well portrayed. Especially noteworthy were No. 4, Bydlo, hauntingly beautiful; the delightful phantasy of No. 5, Ballet of Unhatched Chicks; and the lusty humor of No. 7, Market Women at Limoges Market Place. The ninth of the series, The Hut of Baba-Yaga, was played with power and barbaric splendor.

The program concluded with two encores: Polka by Smetana and Schubert's Ballet Music from Rosamunde.

U. S. O. NOTES...

By JIM COOKE

Last Friday night the Carmel USO took on the atmosphere of a night in the Hawaiian Islands. Marian Dowgiallo and Margo Skaggs were in charge of the decorations and did a splendid job. From Fort Ord came a nine piece orchestra out of the big 67th Army Band. A night that will long be remembered. Terry Jones Bell gave two lovely Hula numbers at the intermission.

Saturday night Carmel USO Carousell gave another of its excellent shows. In getting things rolling, the evening opened with a song slide sing, with Peggy Aitkenhead at the piano. At this moment Dave Lion of Fort Ord came onto the stage as M.C. The whole show was animated every moment and full of emotional appeal and good timing, and we saw why Dave is so successful with his Little Theater at Fort Ord. He is a good M.C. He enkindles the desire to produce. He awakens and calls for the best in each actor. Don Messick, in the first act, delighted the audience with his harmonica.

Billy Daddigan, a hot blues singer, presented It Might As Well Be Spring, Waiting For The Train To Come In, and Embraceable You, and Billy certainly lives up to all expectations. She has a freshness that brings forth enthusiasm from her audience.

Don Messick returned for another act, this one entirely different. He creates a fresh style all his own with his perfect ventriloquism.

The last act was the Irish tenor Jimmy O'Brien, who sang for the last time in Uncle Sam's uniform. He leaves shortly for Hollywood, where he will sing again with Ken Murray's Blackouts. The impeccable taste of O'Brien in selecting the types of song the G.I. wants, and the perfect rendition of same will be kept in mind at Fort Ord and the Carmel USO.

Peggy Aitkenhead gave Don Messick a helping hand at the piano, and Bob Connor accompanied Billy Daddigan and Jimmy O'Brien.

In the audience were Mrs. Bartlett Heard, Vice Chairman of the Northern California USO Advisory Council, and Mrs. Maurice T. Moore of National USO, and Director of Women's Activities for all USO. She is a sister of Henry Luce, Time Editor. Mrs. Moore was delighted with Carmel USO, and said that wherever she goes in her wide USO travels she is always meeting service folks who tell her that if she is ever in California, to be sure and visit Carmel USO, that the Club stands out as different, and that the townspeople are wonderful to the service men and women. She further stated, "After arriving here tonight, unannounced, and watching what makes Carmel USO tick, I now thoroughly understand what those service people meant. The people of Carmel have done a wonderful job". Both Mrs. Heard and Mrs. Moore are USO volunteers.

In the last issue of the "Panorama", the Fort Ord paper, there is an article that Carmel will be interested in. It is about New Entertainment Plans. The Play-Reading Group will be open to all soldiers interested—reading plays for future productions by the players and for the performance of improvisation under the guidance of a Players' Group Director. This activity will be operated with the cooperation of the Carmel USO who have kindly agreed to supply hostesses for the adequate casting of the plays to be read.

Mr. Edward W. Cochrane, nationally known sports writer, has been elected a member of the Carmel USO Operating Committee.

Valentine's Day is a "natural" for USO Clubs, where many a romance has blossomed and where just good old-fashioned friendliness has warmed the heart of lonely servicemen and women. Tonight at 8:30, February 15, Carmel USO celebrates, with a St. Valentine's Dance. It will be informal.

Days Before Yesterday

Mr. Kuster explains why he believes his petition for the rezoning of his Carmel Playhouse should have consideration from the city council, and in doing so, he gives a history of the Playhouse, which is tied up with so much of Carmel's artistic, amusing, turbulent past that we are placing it in the spot generally reserved for Betty Haskell's nostalgic gleanings from the Pine Cone files.

BY EDWARD KUSTER

I have been thinking that newcomers to Carmel, unfamiliar with the story of the town, merely seeing the Playhouse as it stands today in the midst of a cluster of dwellings, should be told about the circumstances of its location and something of its history. I shall try to do this quite objectively, leaving it to others, if I may so hope, to extol the merits of the institution to which I have devoted considerable energy for a good portion of my life.

The Playhouse, unlike the as-yet-unbuilt clubhouse, church, bus depot and other establishments that have now and then come knocking at the Council door, is not seeking admission into an area from which it is barred by zoning restrictions. On the contrary, it was supplying dramatic and musical entertainment in its present location twenty years before zone limits in Carmel were dreamed of, and a full decade before the town's incorporation as a legal municipality.

It was forty years ago, in 1906, that the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts, comprising a group of pioneer artists and writers of this region, built on the Casanova Street side of the Playhouse property a combined clubhouse and theatre, now known as the Greenroom. It was located in what were then the outskirts of the tiny village. There were few houses at that end of town, and none, as far as we can ascertain, near the clubhouse. Gradually, during the intervening forty years, the surrounding neighborhood has filled up, but in all that time the property in question has been devoted to the purposes of drama, music and public assembly.

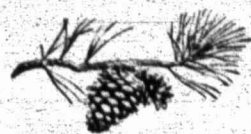

By 1916, ten years after the erection of Arts and Crafts Hall, the community had reached the population limit of five hundred, and succeeded in incorporating itself as the sixth-class city of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

For seventeen years the stage of Arts and Crafts Hall served as the only indoor instrument for Carmel's dramatic and musical urge (the Forest Theater was the medium for the more rugged outdoor spirits); the play-producing element in the Arts and Crafts had gradually become dominant — a habit to which play-producing groups are addicted — and in 1923 the organization proceeded to build a more commodious theatre.

But vaulting ambition had apparently overleaped itself, and the Arts and Crafts, following a pattern only too common among Little Theatre groups, staggered under the load of interest, taxes, insurance, upkeep and unprofitable shows. All Club energies were concentrated on the Theatre; other departments of the organization fell away. Finally, and regrettably, the Club gasped its last and faded from the scene. In 1928 it sold its entire plant — lock, stock and barrel — to the Abalone League of Carmel. Thus passed out of existence Carmel's original and picturesque organization of art and letters, never to be replaced.

This Abalone League was a numerous group of comparatively youthful softball enthusiasts — in fact, we ranged from ten years to seventy. We were, I believe, among the first promoters of that vigorous sport. We played religiously every Sunday afternoon on half a dozen playing-fields. Those were great times in Carmel. Then a queer thing happened, a San Francisco newspaper sent down a couple of smart aleck reporters and a rotogravure cameraman, and shortly thereafter

CHROMATELLA ROSE

Yellow rose of romance of Dona Maria Ignacia Bonifacio and Lt.—later Gen.—William Tecumseh Sherman in Monterey, California, in the 'fifties. He left her and married another. In the 'eighties, Robert Louis Stevenson wooed Fanny Osbourne under same rose.

*Spanish twilight,
Lovers' shy-light,
Falling when the wind is low.
Laughing never,
Lost forever,
Can't you hear a whisper blow?
Here a pardon
Waits in the garden.
The heart of a senorita goes
Through the love-light,
Mourning-dove light,
Back to the Chromatella rose!*

*Still she waits here,
Never hates here.
Love is carved in cameo:
Two lips reaching,
Still beseeching
Kisses back from the long ago.
But she's claimless—
Holds him blameless.
Petals fall as years unclose,
Where, recanted,
Once they planted
Romance to bloom with the yellow rose.*

*Life was a fable.
Death was sable,
Wrapping the Lady of Monterey,
Panacea
For Dona Maria,
Draining the wells of her tears away.
But here in twilight,
Lovers' shy-light,
Still a dark-eyed phantom goes,
Back to linger
With ringless finger
Under the Chromatella rose!*

WINDY NIGHT

*The wind is wildly stirring up the stars,
Throwing them in and out
Among the oak and maple leaves.
All the tree limbs press their doubt*

*Across your face and mine. Shadows
Spread fear along the floor,
Cutting our narrow walls
Apart, blocking the door*

*Against escape from either side.
We cannot hide, though we
Have crawled into the smallest room
We know. We only see*

*And are afraid, these strange stars
Lifted from certainty and thrown
Into a million different worlds,
Each star, alone.*

—MARGARET GROTE.

Have You Read . . . ?

Mrs. Churchill, newly arrived in Carmel, with the memory of John Sedges' excellent novel, The Townsman, still strong in her mind, was impressed with the contrast between this highly favored community and Sedges' Median, Kansas. In the following she has combined an appreciation of Carmel with a review of The Townsman.

BY LEILE MCKIBBEN CHURCHILL

From his boyhood's attic bedroom window, Jonathan Goodliffe, the townsman of John Sedges' novel, The Townsman, always hoped he would see "fair white sails of ships upon the Irish Sea". But only occasionally and on a very clear day could he glimpse the sea at all.

How he would have liked Carmel-by-the-Sea, where he could have replenished his need each day with the blue dancing and sparkling sea, and ships along the horizon.

Instead of that, in 1866, when fifteen years of age, he moved with his parents and too many brothers and sisters away from his beloved England, a 'tiddlin' place", according to Jonathan's wandering father, across the ocean, halfway across "Ameriky" to Kansas.

If Jonathan's father had brought him to Carmel, he would have seen not only the sea, but trees, tall and gnarled with age and sweeping storms; he would have seen white, sparkling sands and sand-made hills, smooth and rounding; flowers, gay with color; the sky, deep blue by day, and with twinkling crystal clear stars by night.

This is what Jonathan found: "no hill, no tree, no rise of any sort, indeed cut off the sky from this earth. The earth lay flat and pressed down around its circular edge by the weight of the sky, heavy and metal-blue by day, and star-sprinkled steel by night. The sky was infinitely more important here than the earth". And underfoot, instead of soft, spongy sand, was either deep dust or hub deep mud. The town, Median, was a small dot of weather-beaten small buildings standing alone in the center of the immense circumference of horizons, dreary, lonesome.

The family built a sod house and set it right, "straight to the North Star". Had this home been built in Carmel, it would have been of adobe, thick-walled and substantial, shaded by live oaks or pine, and placed graciously to conform to the landscape.

But, too soon, Jonathan's dissatisfied father insisted upon moving his family farther along "towards Californy". But Jonathan refused to leave Median. He hated his father; he loved his mother and felt sorry for her, over-taxed with too frequent child-bearing. Even so, and against his parents' wishes, he resolved to stay behind, a young man still in his teens, to live alone in the ugly, forsaken Median. Also, he decided to remain there forever, and to build up the town to suit himself; which he did.

He organized a little school in his mud house, using his own meagre schooling as best he could to educate and inspire children only a little younger than he was. He allowed no color lines, no barriers of different religions. Intelligently, Jonathan struggled to make his own beautiful Heaven in that small center of dust and mud.

He planned on a village Square. Then he built wooden sidewalks across the mud and around the Square. Then he tried to beautify it by planting spindly trees, and carried many buckets of water to keep the trees alive. He was his own personal fire department, as were the other few inhabitants, when the terrible prairie fires roared, closer and closer, then passed over the huts, after having burned up each growing thing. He persuaded newcomers to remain in Median, helped build their houses and taught their children.

One of his great needs was for a church. Had Jonathan come to Carmel, he would have found a people sympathetic to the far-reaching good already established by churches, but in Median, we found ourselves on the Sunday page, with pictures of our economic royalists and impecunious poets and husky young truck drivers playing ball together and a fulsome article describing our democratic and happy ways. We suddenly became self-conscious about the whole thing, and community softball died, a victim of Publicity.

The theatre acquired by the League from the Arts and Crafts was only incidental, a social diversion between softball seasons. But the Theatre, a jealous mistress, retaliated sharply and cruelly. In 1930 the Abalone League, wiser, poorer and rent asunder by theatrical dissension, sold the Playhouse plant to the present owner. The League, one of the most colorful institutions of Old Carmel, took no further interest in life and quietly went to sleep.

Meanwhile, in 1924, the City Council had adopted Carmel's first zoning ordinance. The voters promptly slapped it down and rejected it, by a referendum election that almost ended in a town riot. In 1925, the Council, undaunted, passed the ordinance again. It became a law, and to those faroff "founding fathers" of twenty years ago we owe the present zoning map. It seemed to them all-important to halt the southward trend of "business", so a large "business district" was drawn on the map northward and eastward toward the hills and dales. Comment is unnecessary.

The zoning ordinance left the Playhouse property in limbo, an irregular and "nonconforming" use, its previous twenty-year record of service to the community being ignored. From that day to this it has lived, officially, a precarious life, like the unfortunate halfways in "Outward Bound". Its facilities may not be lawfully expanded to keep pace with community growth; improvements and alterations are limited to those of nominal cost; and, to cap the wellknown climax, in event of destruction by fire only residences may subsequently be built upon the ravaged site!

Nevertheless, by hook or crook the Playhouse has managed until now to keep its plant pretty well abreast of the times. The Arts and Crafts added this and that to the original building; the Abalone League succeeded somehow in putting $5,000 into betterments; the present owner, in 1930, effected alterations exceeding by 200% the maximum permitted by the ordinance; and, finally, in 1935, with the town still aghast over the destruction of the Theatre of the Golden Bough by fire, the Playhouse was quietly suffered to acquire, at a cost of $10,000, its present combination motion-picture-and-stage-play setup. (A setup, by the way, that has brought pleasure to our people and prosperity, not unmixed with outside fame, to the Playhouse.) Our inventory shows a total investment of $30,000.

Thus, notwithstanding an apparently inflexible ordinance, one of whose unwritten purposes is to bring about an end to all "non-conforming uses", the Playhouse has managed to emerge as one of the really charming community theatres of the West, a cherished instrument of public expression for an exceptionally cultured region. Its good repute extends far.

But no form of property can become shabby and inadequate so fast as a theatre. After nearly four years of wartime conditions, the Playhouse needs renovation in every department. The remodeling of the pergola alone will entail an expense of $6,000, more than six times the ordinance limit. We propose to glass-in the sides, roof the top, and enlarge and heat this area where the public waits for the first evening picture show to end, and where it enjoys coffee and high converse between the acts of stage plays. Altogether, an expenditure of $12,000 is contemplated. It must be obvious to everyone that we cannot prudently incur this or any other substantial cost unless the Playhouse is taken off the community's doorstep, so to speak, and legitimized by law.

In conclusion, the writer, in receipt of scores of inquiries regarding the date of re-opening of the Playhouse, must answer: (1) repairs and alterations are indispensable to re-opening; (2) these will be accomplished as soon as the Council gives us the "green light"; (3) the Council is moving in the matter as expeditiously as possible under the checks and delays prescribed by law; (4) we have confidence that the Council will adopt remedial legislation for the best interests of the community; and (5) we shall consider ourselves lucky if we can re-open by June 1. Thanking The Pine Cone-Cymbal for its interest,

Have You Read . . . ?

he had to struggle a long time to attain his church and the right man to be his "preacher".

Had Jonathan come to Carmel, he would have found his own bit of Heaven not only in the natural beauties of his surroundings, but also in the intelligence of the people with their appreciation of the finer things of life.

But, even in Median, as he grew, the town prospered; and Jonathan became a great man, the respected and beloved "Townsmen".

Mullens Here from Valejo

Mr. and Mrs. Ellie Mullen of Vallejo arrived in Carmel Monday for a two-week visit with their cousin, E. H. Ewig. Mr. and Mrs. Ewig had their youngest son, Radioman Stanley Ewig, home last week from Treasure Island for a brief stay. In service a year, he has been at Treasure Island two months. Lieutenant J/g Gordon Ewig is still with the Navy on Okinawa, although he hopes to be breathing California air once more in the not too distant future. At present his work is in connection with setting up of governments on Pacific Islands; and his letters indicate he finds it interesting. He is learning a little Japanese, now, and reports that when combined with gestures it helps out a lot.

La Collecta Meets Wednesday

Members of La Collecta would rather not gamble again on the weatherman's lack of cooperation which dampened their annual picnic last year, and so this year they've not taken any chances. Next Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. they will gather at the home of Mrs. Howard Timbers in Carmel Woods for a pot-luck luncheon meeting. Each member will bring a covered dish, and Mrs. Timbers will serve as hostess. They will omit the studies which are a part of regular meetings, and a program of phonograph records will be the feature of the social gathering.

Sunset Children on Radio

Ten Carmel children introduced the Peninsula to the activities of Sunset School Tuesday night on the weekly KDON educational forum. The first elementary school representatives on the program conducted Tuesdays at 8 p.m., the children were featured in a round-table discussion as to what goes on in the different grades at Sunset.

Susan McCloud of Sixth grade was chairman. Others participating were Julia Graves and Kurt von Meir, Sixth; Sanford La Sor, Pat Chedester, and Patricia Doolittle, Fifth; Richard Whitesides, Fourth; John Thompson, Second; Elizabeth Snite, First; and Susanne Pilot, Kindergarten. Mrs. Helen Cowan Wood, who just left Sunset for a new position with Lassen County schools, and Arthur C. Hull, just returned as principal, worked up the program.

Jean Bates and Fiance Here

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCauley entertained Jean Bates of San Francisco and her fiance, Major Thomas Kelley, last week-end. The major has just returned from two years in the Pacific with the Army medical corps. He is now on terminal leave.

Mrs. Wood Honored by D.K.G.

Two women, Miss Gladys Stone and Mrs. Helen Cowan Wood, prominent in Peninsula education, were honored recently by the Alpha Lambda chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, national honor society for women in education, at a combination welcome and farewell dinner in the Santa Lucia Inn, Salinas. Miss Stone has been newly appointed county schools superintendent of Monterey County. Mrs. Wood, former principal of Sunset School, left this week for Susanville where she has accepted a position in the superintendent's office in the Lassen County schools. Lovely daffodil corsages were presented to Miss Stone, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Elise Beaton, chapter president. The two honored guests also received autographed copies of Cathedral in The Sun from its author and member of the society, Anne B. Fisher.

Clever valentine place cards marked places for members, and under each card were amusing nonsense rhymes which introduced the member on the left. After-dinner music was provided by students of Keith McKillop, head of the Salinas Union High School music department.

Hostesses for the evening were Miss Grace Widemann, Mrs. Laura Tarver, and Dr. Luella Hall, Salinas members. Other members present were Harriett Baker, Frances McGrath, Elmarie Dyke, Beatrice A. K. Jones, Anne N. Peterson, Martha W. Ralph, Maurine Vander Griend, Bess Ward, Nora White, Eleanor Ziel and Mary Greene of Monterey; Mrs. Clara P. Snyder of the State Department of Education, Ruth Blanchard, Elise Beaton, Frances Johnson, and Ann B. Uzzell of Carmel.

John Tanous on Coast

Pvt. John Tanous, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tanous, is back on the coast, following his recent arrival in Seattle from Yokohama on the U.S.S. Eastland. He hopes to be back in Carmel in another ten days, depending on his recovery from a minor operation at Camp Beale, Marysville. Once discharged from the separation center, John is expected to start thinking about South America. His brother, Mike, released from the army last Fall after European service, was a diamond drill engineer in Venezuela before the war, and now the two of them might head south together.

Miss Dorothy Glascock Visits Here

Miss Dorothy S. Glascock, Eddyville, Ore., recently honorably discharged from the Waves, has been visiting Miss Agnes Williston for a few days. Miss Glascock served overseas in Hawaii for a year.

Warren White Recovering

Warren White, local voice teacher, is recovering from an emergency appendectomy at the Peninsula Community Hospital and expects to be home this week-end.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA...one of the nation's most abundant sources of electric power

How plentiful power builds markets in the West

More than half of all the hydroelectric power in the United States is generated in the West. Thirty-seven billion kilowatt-hours annually.

And one important result is... better markets for your products. Western housewives, for example, buy far more home appliances than average housewives. Seventeen per cent more of their homes are wired for electricity, and their standards of living are consequently higher. Western farms use nearly three times as much electricity as average farms, California alone accounting for more than half the country's entire rural consumption.

So plentiful power helps build western markets just as it helps lower manufacturing costs, and nowhere in the West is power more plentiful than in Northern California. Here, the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's vast interconnected generating system has a capacity twice that of Boulder Dam, and 60 per cent greater than Bonneville and Grand Coulee combined. Rates are among the lowest in the nation.

If power is important in your business, either in creating a market or in producing for one, investigate the advantages of locating in Northern California. The Pacific Gas and Electric Company will be glad to help you in every way possible.

Northern California...industrial center of the new Pacific World
PACIFIC GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY

P. G. and E. engineers will help you locate your plant

A well-trained Pacific Gas and Electric Company engineering staff has been built solely to help industrial firms learn the facts about locating in Northern California. This staff works closely with established agencies throughout the entire area, and its service includes at no charge...

A thorough study of available sites, photographs, maps, aerial perspectives. Complete information on environment, transportation, drainage, trucking and freight rates.

Estimated cost of property, of any necessary improvements, of power and other utilities. For more information, or assistance of any kind, write Pacific Gas and Electric Company, San Francisco 6, California.

POWER...to Pace the Future

Electric energy, the "White Coal" of the West, has been an important factor in the challenging growth and prosperity of Northern California. The abundance of this electric power, its widespread distribution at rates among the lowest in the nation, have fostered a live demand for a great diversity of products for the home, farm, factory and business. A dependable supply of hydro-electricity has helped make Northern California one of the richest markets in the Nation.

You, who use electric appliances in your homes and constantly add to this family of mechanical servants, are that market. You buy and use far more electrical appliances than folks elsewhere in the country and you can do so because electricity is convenient and cheap. You, who have farms in Northern California, use more than half of the Nation's entire rural power load. You have complete electric service in your farm home, in the fields and barns. And you, like Northern California business and industry, use electricity to help lower your production costs.

Low cost electric power, and lots of it, has been a builder of markets in Northern California. It took the heavy demands of wartime industries in stride and is ready now to pace the future.

This is the fourth of a series of Pacific Gas and Electric Company advertisements to attract new industry to Northern California. It will appear in Time and the Saturday Evening Post.

PTA Program

What promises to be a delightful program will be presented at the Carmel High School next Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Parents new to the community are especially invited, of both High School and Grammar School children.

Mrs. Alice Rigdon, President of the P.T.A., will have a short meeting preceding the program. The entertainment which follows will be presided over by the High School Principal, Mr. Leo Harris, during which time Dr. Frank Thomas, President of Fresno State College, will be the guest speaker.

Plans for the affair are as follows: Two musical arrangements, played by the Junior-Senior High School Orchestra; a vocal solo, by Robert Jensen; an introduction of the new Sunset School Principal, Mr. Arthur Hall, together with a welcome to the new teachers recently returned from Service: Mr. John White, Mr. Donald Craig, Mr. George Mosolf, Mrs. Katharine Briggs, and Miss Joyce Uzzell; a vocal solo, by Donna May Berry; two numbers by the Senior High School chorus; "Getting Along Together," by Dr. Frank Thomas.

The String Ensemble will play during the social hour, and refreshments will be taken care of by the Home Economics Department.

University Women

Pre-Revolutionary Russia, a report by Mrs. H. P. Ahenke of Lafayette, will introduce the program for the American Association of University Women on Wednesday evening, February 20, at 8:00 o'clock, at the home of Miss Gertrude Rendtorff on Camino Real. Mrs. Ahenke, the mother of Mrs. Ted Durein, went as a bride to St. Petersburg—Leningrad to this generation—where her husband was employed for two years supervising building an electric powerhouse and kindred installations. Her observations and experiences during that period will furnish the basis for her talk.

Miss Ann Millis will review the book, I saw the Russian People, by Ella Winter, and Mrs. Durein will report on The Russia I Believe In, by Dr. Samuel Harper, published posthumously in 1943. Dr. Harper, son of the first president of the University of Chicago, was head of the Russian Department of the university. Miss Mabel Hoffman will present Richard E. Lauterbach's These Are the Russians, and Mrs. Bertha Hellum will play recordings of Russia music to round out the program.

Hostesses for the evening are Mrs. L. H. Sortais, chairman, Mrs. Everett Bibb, Mrs. Charles Simpson, Mrs. Eldon Covell, and Mrs. J. Howard Warner. Miss Harriet Baker of Pacific Grove is president of the organization, which takes its membership from the entire peninsula area.

Bridge Section Meets

Ten tables of bridge were filled Monday for the Carmel Woman's Club Bridge Section meeting. The committee in charge of the tea chose yellow acacia and blue cineraria as decorations, creating a gay and springlike effect. Mrs. S. M. Baldwin was chairman, assisted by Miss Blanche O'Neill. Mrs. Helen Krepps and Mrs. M. A. Cheek poured.

Belle Holcomb Wed

Mrs. Belle Holcomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Baird, Monterey and Memphis, Tenn., was married Thursday at the Monterey home of her parents to Herbert Theodore Seipel, Newburg, N. Y. The Rev. James E. Crowther, pastor of Carmel's Church of the Wayfarer, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Seipel will spend their honeymoon in San Francisco and will be at home in Carmel after March 1.

Mr. Seipel was discharged from the army in October after four years of service, including two and a half years in Panama and a period at Fort Ord. An architect, he is associated with Robert Jones in Carmel. Mrs. Seipel formerly conducted Belle's Tailor Shop here. Mrs. Clarence E. Seipel, mother of the groom, flew from New York for the ceremony.

A. C. Smiley Opens Office

Colonel A. C. Smiley, Jr., husband of the former Marian Lansdowne, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn Lansdowne of Carmel, is now serving the Peninsula as a public accountant, auditor and tax counselor at his office in Monterey. Recently released from the army, he is making his home in Carmel on Santa Fe. Promoted to his present rank last month, the colonel also recently received the Bronze Star Medal at Fort Bliss, Texas. His ETO ribbon with five battle stars represents action in North Africa and Sicily, at Oran, Kasserine Pass, El Guatar, Bizerte, Cassino, and Anzio. He was on the staffs of Generals Patton, Clark and Bradley. After returning to the United States, he served as assistant chief of staff G-2, H.Q. Anti-aircraft Command. He is a graduate of New Mexico Military Institute and Oregon State College and is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. Before the war he worked for Horwath and Horwath, firm of public accountants, and Douglas McKenzie, C.P.A.

Mrs. Osborne at Santa Ana

Mrs. Alice Osborne left Sunday via the Daylight for Los Angeles, where she is visiting her husband, Major R. F. Osborne, now at Santa Ana Air base. They will be back Friday in time for a family birthday party Saturday, honoring Mrs. Osborne. The major will return to Santa Ana.

Mrs. Berkey Entertains Auxiliary

Fourteen members of the Carmel American Legion Auxiliary gathered at the home of Mrs. C. L. Berkey Monday night to receive their district president, Eva Dodd of Salinas. The meeting was highlighted by President Dodd's brief address. She discussed the work of the American Legion, its plans for the future, and what is to be done for new veterans. The district president had complimented the members of the local group for their enthusiasm in promoting Auxiliary welfare. Presiding was Mrs. Earl Jukes of Monterey, chapter president.

Captain Sartori to Leave

Captain Gerard Sartori, recently returned from the China-Burma-India theater, has been assigned to Langley Field, Va., and is to report there March 1. His wife will remain in Carmel. They visited San Francisco last week to give the Captain a chance to see the many changes in the Bay area since he had last been there.

Miss Kate Firmin Returns

Miss Kate M. Firmin has just returned to her home on San Antonio after a two-months' visit with friends and relatives in the Seattle and Tacoma area, where she once lived. Miss Ruth Fitzsimons and Miss Ida Rose Kratch, both of Seattle, who were at Miss Firmin's home while she was gone, will remain here about another week prior to visiting Santa Barbara and other Southern California points.

Mrs. Rendtorff Group Changes Day

Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff will meet her group in foreign affairs regularly every third Thursday of the month at her home, 506 Camino Real, a change from the previous meeting time.

In case you haven't noticed, there's a wonderful new annex at THE CARMEL GROCERY called "The Hostess Room." A veritable Paradise of rare canapes, it has everything a hostess could want in the way of fancy trimmings for a cocktail party or tea. There's Richardson and Robinson boned chicken, pate de foie gras, crepes suzette, button mushrooms. . . And for that sharp, appetizing flavor, lobster pate, flat file of anchovie, smoked shad pate and shrimp. . . All sorts of wonderful things to spread on crackers or put in tiny sandwiches to make your cocktail party or tea a complete success. And CARMEL GROCERY also has a complete line of Sandeman sherries and ports, a variety of liqueurs, and even imported champagne!

Something's been going on at ARDEE'S on Dolores Street lately, and turns out it's new management. William Ellis, the talented new owner, is a specialist at hand-carved leather-craft and makes stunning hand-bags and wallets as well as leather novelties. Among them—alligator covered match-boxes, with your name embossed in gold. He makes all kinds of hand-tooled leather-goods to order, and also does repairing and re-dressing. . . so if you have any old battered hand-bags or suitcases that you thought were ready for the ashcan, ARDEE'S is the place to go! And there are lots of things in stock, of course—luggage, saddle shoulder-bags, Cordé hand-bags, a variety of wallets, picture-frames, everything you could imagine in the way of leather-goods. . . And one of the most astonishing items is a radio covered with calf-skin!

Shell-jewelry with a unique history is in at MERLE'S TREASURE CHEST this week. . . Exquisitely different pins, combs with flower-sprays of shell—but unfortunately it's a limited supply. Discovered on the ancient beaches of Lake Bonneville in Utah, the shells are actually prehistoric and fossilized, hundreds of years old. There's one pin shaped like a many-petalled flower with a swirling center of pink shells, bordered with blue, and larger white shells encircle the whole. Another is heart-shaped with a spray of pink blossoms against tiny white shells. . . And there's another with a pansy design. . . Hauntingly fragile and old-fashioned.

Cottage-type cups, saucers, plates and bowls, unusual demi-tasse with curved handles, some stunning pieces of ceramic sculpture (semi-abstract female figures in the palest of salmon-glazes, others in dull white). . . These pieces of California pottery signed "Mary E" carry a note of sophisticated simplicity suitable to castle or cottage and are distinguished new arrivals at THE DISCOVERY SHOP. And there are uniquely beautiful large plates. . . One looks like a forest seen through mist. . . Others are in leaf and swirling circle designs. But a particularly striking note is ceramic sconces for flowers—there's one in russet, autumn tones which would be ideal for a display of ferns or even small pine-branches.

Something tells us that spring has broken through at THE CARMEL DRESS SHOP! A turtle-necked cotton with circular stripes in grey, aqua and pink; smart shantungs in dazzling white or chic navy with real saddle-leather belts; some perfectly enchanting raw silks in crushed raspberry, beige and grey. . . Some larger sizes in mesh. . . They're aqua, navy and shell-pink. Sophisticated wear for Carmel and the Monterey Peninsula.

Scoops on suits! Over at the MARIANNA SHOP in Monterey,

Mrs. Peter Svane on Visit

Mrs. Peter Svane, the former Genevieve Norvell of Carmel, has just returned to San Francisco following a week in her old home town as house guest of Mrs. Paul Low. Mrs. Svane's mother, Mrs. Annette Norvell, has sold her home on Hatton Road and is now living in Reno, but she is planning to return to Carmel and build.

Two Boys Born Tuesday

Two boys were added to the Carmel population this week at Peninsula Community Hospital, both born on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Klinger, Eleventh and Dolores, named their son Rafael Malin. The new son of Mr. and Mrs. William Boyer, First and Santa Fe, has been named William Preston, Jr.

they've just gotten in a flock of palm beach suits by Socony. One of the greatest names in summer clothing, Socony suits appear in the leading fashion magazines and are noted for their scientific smart tailoring, "Wrinkle resistance," and their ability to hold their shape. In two styles—strictly tailored Eaton jackets, or of the dress-maker type—with long sleeves or short. Suitable to town or country, they also have separate matching slacks, as well as complete slack-suits of the same smartly sophisticated, classic type. Grey, navy, brown, black, pebble-sand and white. And the MARIANNA SHOP also has some dresses by Socony—their simplicity is the essence of good taste.

And more spring news in the suit-line is to be found at Monterey's COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP. These lovely, soft suits have wing sleeves, and there's a dream of a one in French grey. Another is an indescribable color, like chalky pearl. And light-weight coats are another joyous item. California type "shorties," they're all wool and come in grey, gold and green. But best of all, there's a white shorty, of the popular shag fabric, which would be mighty striking either at night or in the afternoon.

By the way, they've got some more of that wonderful scotch plaid everyone was so wild about a few weeks ago at PUTNAM AND RAGGETT'S again. Red, black and green with threads of yellow and blue against a white background, it's 100% wool, and would make handsome skirts, sport-coats, robes for men, and even dresses!

With George Washington's birthday next on the agenda, the VILLAGE BOOK SHOP has some pretty special books for children. The tiny tots would be delighted with a big picture book called "George Washington" which is illustrated in full color and tells Washington's story from boyhood to Valley Forge and the Presidency. And for the older kids there's "Johnny Tremain" by Esther Forbes, which gives a vivid picture of those stirring days in 1773 when the Boston Tea-Party was brewing, as seen through the sensitive eyes of a 14 year old boy. And many other books on the revolutionary period, including some fascinating ones on early arts and crafts, which make intimately real the everyday life of our forebears.

Marilyn Herlihy Wed

Marilyn H. Herlihy, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. William J. Herlihy, Carmel, was married last week in Fort Ord Chapel to Lieutenant Harold Sandlin, Dental Corps A.U.S., son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Sandlin, Ardmore, Okla. Father Brennan performed the ceremony. The bride's mother served as matron of honor, and a brother, William J. Herlihy, gave her away. Lieutenant Leo Leger-ski was best man. Colonel Herlihy was unable to attend the ceremony because of prior commitments in Korea, but pictures are being rushed to him. A flower motif predominated in the chapel—which was decorated with daffodils and calla lilies. The bride wore pale pink and carried an old fashioned bouquet of bouvardia and a white orchid. A halo of bouvardia was worn in her hair. Mrs. Herlihy wore pale blue, a hat of white gardenia, and carried orchids.

Mrs. Sandlin attended Holy Names College in Oakland and will live with her mother in Carmel when Lieutenant Sandlin is sent overseas. The lieutenant attended the University of Oklahoma and was graduated from the Baylor College of dentistry in Texas, where he was a member of Omicron Kappa Upsilon, national honor fraternity, and Delta Sigma Delta. Mr. and Mrs. Sandlin went to San Francisco on their honeymoon after the wedding dinner at Del Monte Lodge.

Peter Low Out of Khaki

Peter A. Low, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Low, is back home with the family in Carmel after his three year session with the Army. For seventeen months he was overseas as a T-4 with the 43rd Division First Cavalry, and his excitement included the Luzon landing. Since last September he had been in Japan, leaving there last month aboard the U.S.S. General Gordon, Navy attack transport. His plans remain uncertain, but he will probably return to Stanford and finish his schooling now that his army discharge has been completed.

Captain Kirby Low, 25, is still in uniform but is expected home from France next month. At first in the field artillery, he was placed in the civil affairs section when it was learned that he had spent ten years of his childhood in France. Last September he was married to a French girl who in March will take advantage of the new fast air service recently inaugurated between the Continent and the U.S. West Coast. Captain Kirby, who has his M.A. from Stanford, went into service directly from university. He had been active in the ROTC.

Visitor at Rancho Carmelo

Lieutenant Carol Eaton, physio-therapist in the Army Medical Corps, visited her old friend Peggy Mathiot at Rancho Carmelo last Week-end in the Carmel Valley. She and Peggy were stationed at the hospital at Modesto at the same time and later ran into each other overseas. Lieutenant Eaton was with the 202nd General Hospital near Paris from October, 1945, until September, 1946, and is now at Letterman General Hospital.

Lt. Bliss Back from Japan

First Lieutenant Howard Bliss is again in Carmel after four years of Army life. Back after serving with occupation troops in Japan, one glimpse at existing conditions convinced him of the advisability of remaining inservice. Thus, next week he heads for Camp Roberts to learn further about his military status. Originally from Pennsylvania, he came to California upon assignment to Fort Ord. His wife and two children have been here since, and they're all so sold on the area that they will be difficult to uproot, he explained. A platoon leader with the 81st Division, he was in the infantry, and his action included fighting in the Philippines. While with the occupation troops in Japan, he secured a much broader viewpoint of the Japanese people than he had previously and admitted he actually liked his stay over there.

Officers' Wives Meet Tuesday

Party For the Rusters

● SPORTING NOTES...

By FRANCIS SHEA

A 43-26 runaway victory over the Gonzales Spartans Friday night temporarily put Carmel Padre heavyweight cagers in the top spot of the B division of the CCAL. Padre Babes, although trailing in the league, smashed their way to an 18-16 win over a Gonzales five.

The heavyweight battle was speedy and exciting, but definitely one-sided. Carmel led all the way, 12-6, 22-11, and 33-20 at the ends of the first three stanzas, respectively, and sewed up things 43-26 in the final quarter.

Carmel heavies: Art Templeman 12, Clayton Neill 9, Martin Irwin 9, Tom Hefling 7, Owen Greenan 5, Max Hodges 1, Dick Mulholland, Bill Gargiulo, Lew McCreery, Ralph Westover, Don Adams, and Rod Dewar.

"Thrilling," would be the best word to use in describing the lightweight encounter, the Babes winning a rough and rugged, 18-16 game.

Not a single field goal was tallied during the first quarter and only one was made by each team by half time. Thirty-three fouls were called during the battle, twenty on Carmel and thirteen on Gonzales. The Babes lagged 4-2 at the quarter, surged out in front 9-7 at half time and dropped behind 13-12 by the end of the third heat. With seconds left to play matters were tied, 16-16, but Lee Winslow and Dick Larkey of Carmel, by tanking a foul shot each, pushed the Padres ahead at the final whistle.

Carmel lightweights: Bill Sapsis 7, David Wilson 7, Lee Winslow 2, Dick Larkey 1, Murray Wight 1, Paul Warner, and Bob Rissel.

Coaches Ted Fehring and Chuck Dawson were joyous Tuesday afternoon as their Carmel Padre squads gave heavily favored Treador quintets a sound shellacking in a pair of thrill-packed contests. Carmel heavyweights won 36-25, while the lightweights massacred their opponents, 34-14, to take their first encounter from Monterey in three seasons. Coach Chuck Dawson of the Babes commented, "I would say that they (the Babes) played red-hot basketball, their best of the year."

After an exciting first quarter in which both teams showed their dead-eye ability at fairly long range the Padre heavies led 10-7, then forged ahead 19-9 at half time. Monterey rallied in the third stanza but high point man Templeman of Carmel stopped them cold and the Padres were still in front, 28-18 by the end of the heat. Carmel scored 8 points in the final period and the Treadores racked up 7.

Playing for the Padres: Art Templeman 11, Clayton Neill 10, Tom Hefling 6, Martin Irwin 5, Don Adams 2, Ralph Westover 1, Owen Greenan 1, Lew McCreery and Bill Gargiulo. High-point men for Monterey were Tom Perez 8, Sal Colletto 7, and Captain Bob Thacker 6.

The lightweight fracas was so fiery as to steal the thunder from the heavy classic, Padre Babes playing a magnificent game. At first the Carmelites, on the offensive since the starting whistle, tried to sink too long shoots, but started on their way to victory when Winslow intercepted a Monterey pass and tossed the sphere to Sapsis, who put it in the bucket. Monterey could never seem to hold the ball for more than a few seconds, often throwing it right into the arms of a Carmel cager. Just about every Babe took his turn racking up counters, and they led 8-2 at the quarter.

A Monterey dribbler had the ball with a clear path to the bucket early in the second period, and two Carmelites were on the floor. He skidded to a halt at the basket, waited until the nearest Babe caught up to him, and then, desperate, tried a pass that was easily intercepted and converted into a score for Carmel. From then until the half the Babes held their rivals scoreless and slaughtered 'em, leading 20-2.

The lads from the Fish City tried a feeble comeback in the third division, each team racking up 7 points. In the final heat Monterey had control of the ball most of the time, but though they attempted innumerable shots, their success was negligible, the Babes getting another 7 counters to their 5.

Carmel players: Bill Sapsis 8, Dick Larkey 8, Lee Winslow 7, Paul Warner 6, Murray Wight 4, Mike Monohan 1, David Wilson, Curtis Gorham and Frank Timmins. Ronald Roberts was tops for the Treadores with 4.

Carmel Padre basketball players made Coach Ted Fehring and their many rooters plenty proud of them Saturday evening, pounding out a 24-17 win over Fresno High School Varsity. Undaunted by the fact that they were facing adversaries from a school many times the size of their own, the Carmelites surpassed even their splendid efforts in the Hollister contest to dazzle everyone with flawless teamwork and expert precision.

Sparking the Padre offensive was high point man Clayton Neill, who sank four field goals and two foul shots to rack up ten points. Carmel led 6-4 at quarter time, the encounter was tied, 8-8, at the half, and by the end of the third quarter it was the Padre's, 18-9.

Carmel lineup: Clayton Neill 10, Art Templeman 6, Martin Irwin 4, Tom Hefling 4, Owen Greenan, and Richard Mulholland.

The All-American Red Head five won 27-21 over the men's faculty squad in a riotous comedy that failed to live up to expectations as far as basketball was concerned. The girls could possibly have played a very fine game had they chosen to, but they were more inclined to amuse the crowd by ruffling Principal Leo Harris's and Chuck Dawson's hair. Had the teachers tried their utmost and really put on the pressure there is little doubt but that they would have been the victors.

The Red-Heads led 10-4 at the

Harry Downie Shudders To Recall "Gold Rush" At Carmel Mission

to gain wealth from it, was an old Indian named Panoche. Panoche, who claimed to know its exact location, canvassed a number of fortune seekers, persuaded them into grub-staking a sizable expedition which he was to guide—and walked off by himself into the yonder, a reasonably wealthy red-skin.

However, California's legends thrive like its fruits and vegetables. The discovery of the "tunnel entrance" in the Mission yard was the excuse for an unprecedented pilgrimage to the old Mission—of worshippers girded with shovels, picks, "doodle-bugs" (pseudo-scientific gold locators) and even electric mineral detectors.

All this might have been more amusing to Mr. Downie had he not been such a busy man. However, with the grounds over-run by curious, eager, questioning people, it became just a darned nuisance. Mr. Downie is a man of great patience, a prerequisite to his painstaking job of authentically restoring the Mission. But this experience tried him sorely. "Please be careful what you say," he begged when interviewed, "I'd hate to get things stirred up again!"

As a further discourager he told why he believes there is no truth to the legend. First, that all Indians were under constant surveillance by six Mission soldiers and could not have gone into the mountains and worked a mine without detection. Secondly, the hills were well scoured by hunters and trappers who would have noticed them. Third, documentary evidence shows that the priests were perpetually as poor as the proverbial church mice, Padre Lasuen not having the funds to support an elderly sister.

Mr. Downie does confess to one puzzling mining experience. At one time he noticed a quantity of low grade silver ore about the Mission grounds. Recalling no such ore in the vicinity, he took the specimen to a mining consultant. It came, he was told, from South America. It took him sometime before he made the following Holmesian deduction: that ships from our East coast, bound for the West coast of Latin America by way of Magellanes, discharged their cargo sometimes in Chile. Then, needing ballast, they loaded quantities of low grade silver ore for the remainder of their voyage to Monterey harbor. The ballast was then dumped in the vicinity of the Mission!

Since 1931, Mr. Downie has been Curator of the Carmel Mission, both directing and doing the excavating and constructing which will eventually (in ten years, he hopes) restore the Mission to its peak quarter, the gentlemen were out in front 15-12 at half time and from then on the ladies were occupying the driver's seat.

Playing for the faculty: Ed Harget 7, Chuck Dawson 4, Joe Kelly 4, Leo Harris 2, Howard Byrne 2, Russ Bohlke, member of the graduating class of Carmel High '43 and former All-CCAL star 2, George Mosolf and Ted Fehring.

period of development, about 1820. As he excavates and researches, he is writing a book based upon the growth of the Mission. The Mission, he points out, was not a spontaneous product of the original missionaries. It developed by slow growth and many changes over many years. Buildings were erected and torn down, the overall shape changed several times. The few original separate buildings, for example, were not connected until 1820, then many times subdivided. Tanneries, weaving shops, maneros (Indian boys' and girls' dormitories), were added from time to time to form a complete, self-sustaining community under one roof. The original foundations, only recently uncovered, are in excellent shape and are being used in the restoration.

Mr. Downie's book will follow closely this physical growth of the Mission, contemporizing names, events, and historical notes.

"I don't want my book to be a historical rehash of pages of dry facts," he explains. "Much has been written of early Californian history, but I'll try to deal principally with things previously unknown or undiscovered. I want to show what a large establishment the Mission was and what a vast impression its life left upon this part of the country. Throughout it will be recorded physical findings which prove or disprove both legends and so-called historical events."

The author is well equipped for his labor. An ardent fact-finder, his library files contain extracts of Church and library archives throughout California and Mexico. From copies of baptismal certificates in his possession he can trace the lineage of any local person of early Californian descent.

This proved valuable in tracing eye-witnesses of Father Serra's disinterment in 1882 for the purpose of establishing record of the existence of his remains, necessary to Canonization proceedings now under way.

From a minutely complete inventory of the Carmel Mission as it stood in 1836 he could conceivably restore the Mission down to the smallest ceremonial finger napkin. What pieces he cannot authenticate he himself reproduces. Some of the statues he hopes to replace with others from Mexico of the same period. Otherwise he will carve them.

Mission San Carlos, since its despoliation in about 1850, when it was stripped of its furnishings which were sent to Monterey, has suffered from utter neglect. Formerly the Presidente of all California Missions, it is one of the least well preserved. For many years it was cannibalized for building materials, apparently fated to remain forever a historic and colorful old ruin.

Under Mr. Downie's careful hands, instead, the old Mission is again taking physical form, while at the same time it is coming to life again as the spiritual center of a new parish. To Mr. Downie, who visualizes its eventual resurrection, the job will be long and hard—but not a tedious one.

Local Kids Having Lunch with 'Winos' Says Allen Knight

The problem of Carmel children buying lunch-time hamburgers in an unspecified liquor establishment, frequented by habitual drunks, came up for brief discussion at the special council meeting Wednesday morning.

The meeting had been called for an entirely different purpose, to decide whether the citizens should protest to the Board of Equalization over the transfer of an off-sale beer and wine license from L. L. Clift to Edwin M. Tomasini in the Drive-In Market at Dolores and Eighth. The decision was against protesting the transfer.

Tying the children in with the liquor problem came up when Councilman Allen Knight introduced the question of licensing spots which admit minors. Not specifying the establishment, he said that many complaints had been received to the effect that youngsters were being exposed to "drunken old winos" there, but under the state law, minors may be served food in such establishments and there is no police action the city can take.

Discussing the Tomasini license transfer, Mayor P. A. McCreery advised against the citizens' protesting to the State Board of Equalization, when no issue of great consequence was involved. He warned that the board would come to consider Carmel as tending toward minor protestations and fail to recognize merit in a later protest, which might be highly important. The mayor then read the eight points under which the board acts in denying a license, none of which is applicable to the Tomasini case.

To allay fears that the council's hands might be tied by the transfer if later Tomasini wanted a spirits license, City Attorney William Hudson said that the council is bound in no way and will be perfectly free to act. He, too, emphasized that taking this protest before the state board would weaken the future influence of the city and the council before the board.

Wesley Kergan, city attorney of Monterey, acting in a private capacity as legal representative of Tomasini, argued that some citizens may have a quarrel with liquor, but they must, nevertheless, live in the world of facts. The sale of liquor is legal and legitimate, even though one might disagree, he pointed out. Kergan placed stress on Tomasini's clean record in business and assured the council that his client was not planning to seek a spirits license.

Mrs. Alice Rigdon, president of the P. T. A., but at the meeting as an individual, spoke briefly, emphasizing that regardless of laws, the control of liquor must come through education. Cutting down the number of places available won't reduce the desire for liquor, was her contention. Dr. James E. Crowther, pastor of the Church of the Wayfarer, also spoke briefly as an individual. The principal protestants, the USO, failed to have a representative.

Sophs Elect New Officers; Stage Picnic And Hop

The sophomore class of Carmel High School, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Elise Beaton and Coach Chuck Dawson, started the new semester by electing four new and capable officers; for president, Phil Wettingel; vice-president, Paul Warner; secretary, Mike Monahan, and treasurer, Rod Dewar. The retiring officers were Bob Rissel, president; Frank Timmins, vice-president; Susan Moore, secretary, and Murray Wight, treasurer.

Under the new officers the class had their annual picnic at Point Lobos, which has been traditional since the eighth grade. Everyone had a wonderful time, and came back thoroughly exhausted from a game of football and several relay races. Mr. Leo Harris, Mrs. Beaton, and Mrs. Blinks went along with the class.

Last Saturday, after the game with Fresno, and the faculty versus the All American Redheads, the sophomores gave their Soph Hop, which was a great success. Decorations were done by: Peggy Riker, chairman, Jackie Work, Betty Plaxton, Frances Gillmore and Carol Hildebrand. The decorations were very effective, and consisted mainly of large hearts and cupids on the side walls. The stage was set off with a white mesh-like curtain with a large red heart shining on the wall and reflecting on the curtain. Refreshments were coke, orange pop, and cookies. This committee was headed by Roberta Roberts. Lee Winslow and Owen Greenan provided the records for music, which were played by Richard Moore and Richard Rea. John Blinks headed the welcoming committee, whose main task was the selling and taking of tickets. The others who helped with the dance were: Roland van den Burg, Tom Bates, Mike Monahan, Phil Wettingel, John Blinks, Bob Rissel, Paul Warner and Rod Dewar. The total "paying attendance" was 111. Although there was not an orchestra as in former years, everyone agreed that this dance was one of the finest of the year.
